ONE TOUGH MUDDER

5 THINGS TO KNOW

WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

NIKKI M MASCALI, REPORTER

Disclaimer: I'm not one to exert myself too much beyond my daily walks with my dog. But I really admire people who have the drive to do things like Tough Mudder, so it was a treat to talk to the reigning TMX champion Hunter McIntyre for today's story. Hunter nabbed the title for the second year in a row on CBS Saturday, but even more importantly, he answered several burning questions of mine about his workout regime, shoes and that badass TMX course — and even revealed two surprising food habits. Find out what they are on page 4 or at metro.us.

1 TRUMP THREATENS GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

President Donald Trump said on Sunday he would allow the federal government to shut down if Democrats do not fund his border wall and back immigration law changes, betting that maintaining a hard line will work in Republicans' favor in November congressional elections. However, a disruption in federal government operations could backfire on Trump if voters blame Republicans, who control Congress, for the interruption in services. "I would be willing to 'shut down' government if the Democrats do not give us the votes for Border Security, which includes the Wall! Must get rid of Lottery, Catch & Release etc. and finally go to system of Immigration based on MERIT! We need great people coming into our Country!" Trump said on Twitter. Americans are divided along party lines on immigration, and 81 percent of Republicans approved Trump's handling of the issue, according to a Reuters/Ipsos poll released this month. The Republican president has threatened a shutdown several times since taking office in 2017 in a bid to get immigration priorities in congressional spending bills, especially funding for a wall along the southern U.S. border.

2 HOF CLASS TAKES ITS PLACE IN COOPERSTOWN

Six players reached the pinnacle of their illustrious careers when they joined the Baseball Hall of Fame during a sun-splashed ceremony Sunday afternoon in Cooperstown, N.Y. Four hitters – Chipper Jones, Vladimir Guerrero, Jim Thome and Alan Trammell – joined the Class of 2018 in front of fans wearing jerseys and hats from the teams they represented. The foursome was joined by two pitchers — Trevor Hoffman and Jack Morris — to complete the — talent-laden, six-member class. More than 50 returning Hall of Famers attended the ceremony, which capped a week long celebration in the small town in upstate New York. The newest inductees brought the number of all-time Hall of Famers to 323. Jones' eyes watered as he watched a video showing highlights from his 19-year career with the Atlanta Braves. He was a .303 lifetime hitter with 2,726 hits, 468 home runs and 1,623 RBIs, all with the Braves. The switch-hitter spoke about his childhood in Pierson, Fla., where he fell in love with the game. He spoke in front of family members including his parents and his 9-month pregnant wife, Taylor, who is due Monday.

3 MASSIVE WILDFIRE SPREADS TO 80,000 ACRES IN REDDING, CALIFORNIA

A deer stands on a road covered with fire retardant as the Carr Fire burns in the area of Redding, California. A Redding firefighter and bulldozer operator were killed battling the fast-moving Carr Fire that has charred more than 80,000 acres and destroyed hundreds of homes. The fire is 5 percent contained.

4 NIGERIA TO SEND AIR FORCE TO FIGHT BANDITRY

Nigeria will deploy its air force and 1,000 security personnel to fight outlaws in the northwest of the country, President Muhammadu Buhari said on Sunday. The move underscores how security has broken down across much of Nigeria, where an ineffective police force has exacerbated already-weak enforcement, particularly outside urban areas. The military is now deployed in more than 30 of the 36 states. Nigeria is tackling a nine-year conflict with Boko Haram and Islamic State West Africa in the northeast. There is also a conflict across much of its hinterland between farmers and herders that is now more deadly than the war against those insurgencies. In addition, there are oil-fueled militancies in the Delta to the south and banditry and kidnappings through much of the country. Criminality has plagued the northwest for years, particularly around Zamfara state and its border with Kaduna state, though a recent spate of kidnappings and killings in the region has put the region in the public eye.

5 GREAT-GRANDMOTHER KILLED TRIED TO SAVE KIDS

A 70-year-old woman and her two great-grandchildren died as she tried in vain to save them from a wildfire that raged through an area of northern California and engulfed their home, officials and family members said. Two firefighters have also died and another 12 people are missing. More than 38,000 people remained under evacuation orders on Sunday in and around the city of Redding, about 160 miles north of the state capital Sacramento. The Carr Fire, which has destroyed more than 500 buildings, is the deadliest and most destructive of nearly 90 wildfires burning from Texas to Oregon. The Carr Fire has charred 89,194 acres (36,095 hectares) of drought-parched vegetation since erupting last Monday. Redding Police Sergeant Todd Cogle confirmed that the three bodies discovered at a fire-ravaged home on the outskirts of Redding were two children and their great-grandmother. The victims identified by relatives on Facebook and in news media reports were James Roberts, 5, his sister Emily, 4, and their great grandmother, Melody Bledsoe, 70.

McIntyre thrives on being dragged through the mud

Tough Mudder champ Hunter McIntyre talks shoes, his workout regime — and why he chooses sugar over veggies.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Hunter McIntyre always loved sports, but it wasn't until he discovered Spartan Race in 2011 that he knew what he wanted to be when he grew up: a professional at obstacle course racing (OCR). Fast-forward seven years, and the 29-year-old just won his second consecutive Tough Mudder X championship on Saturday.

Did you like to play in the mud as a kid?
No, I didn't like to play in the mud as a kid. Everyone calls them mud runs, that's the fun name for it, but the races that we do, whether it's the Tough Mudder or Spartan, they're very challenging and engaging and a lot of fun.

What's your favorite — and least favorite — parts of the 1-mile Tough Mudder X course?
I hate barbed wire, but I'm a big fan of anything that is heavy and challenging to pick up, flipping a big tire, picking up a big sandbag, overcoming a heavy obstacle you have to lift up or climb up. The sport is both skill-based and brute-strength based. I love it.

How many shoes do you go through during a competing season?
It's terrible, I'm like a total diva. I have a whole outdoor closet that has about 30 or 40 pairs of shoes. I probably get rid of about five to 10 pairs every year — but I wear five different pairs of shoes a week.

I've got pairs I use for the gym, for outdoor gym workouts, for running, for trail running and I have my race shoes, which are very light, but they only last two or three races. I use Nike for training, and for most road racing, I use New Balance. For outdoor stuff, I use Merrell.

Hunter McIntyre won the Tough Mudder X championship this past weekend. PROVIDED

What's your training regime leading up to the Tough Mudder X finals?
I go to training camps in the mountains every spring for about eight to 12 weeks to get altitude training, and I usually buckle down and don't do anything but workout, eat food, play video games and go to bed early.

What's your diet like?
I eat probably about 1,500 to 2,000 calories worth of pancakes a day, that's just easy and delicious. I eat a lot of Honey Nut Cheerios, a lot of yogurt and a lot of steak. The most important thing is to eat foods that are easily digested and good for you to get ready for the next workout.

I almost never eat vegetables. I see people always eating salads and stuff, and I've never seen anybody do anything badass because they ate a salad.

What is something unhealthy you do that might surprise people?
I eat probably 300 to 400 grams of sugar a day. I don't eat, like, spoonfuls of sugar, but after a workout, I'll have a Snapple or a FitAid — they're not bad sugars if you work hard. I'll eat ice cream at nighttime to get my calories in. I eat a whole jar of honey a week. I definitely look leaner the more sugar I eat. Most doctors would yell at me, but it's the truth.

Brian Scalabrine is ready to put on a show at the Garden

The former Celtics star is back on the court in Boston for BIG3.

MATT JUUL
matthew.juul@metro.us

While it's been almost a decade since Brian Scalabrine last suited up as a player for the Celtics, the fan-favorite baller plans to rain buckets back at the TD Garden as part of the BIG3 league's stop in Boston.

Of course, Scalabrine hasn't strayed too far away from the famed venue since leaving the NBA, first as a player then a coach, to pursue a career in broadcasting. Although he spends a lot of time around the TD Garden these days as a Celtics analyst for NBC Sports, playing this weekend with the Ball Hogs for the Ice Cube-backed league will be the first time in a long time that many local fans will have seen Scalabrine shoot around in Boston.

"I'm not going to lie, I want to put on a great show for the people that see me there everyday," Scalabrine tells Metro. "I've been working real hard to play well in Boston."

Unlike the NBA, BIG3 is all about three-on-three basketball, which Scalabrine admits is "very different" from the standard five-on-five game. However, the former Celtics star believes that this style of play is "ultra competitive" and a bit more akin to how he grew up playing the sport.

"It's very much mano a mano," Scalabrine says. "You get a lot of opportunities where you've got to stop a guy one-on-one."

The player-turned-analyst praises Ice Cube and the BIG3 brass for providing basketball stars another platform to show off their skills. Scalabrine believes that the league, now in its sophomore year, has a lot of potential for growth.

"As long as a guy like Ice Cube and his group are running it, that group knows how to fill an arena," he says. "They know how to negotiate contracts. They know how to treat players. It's a first-class league all the way."

ALL PHOTOS ISTOCK

With most colleges beginning classes sometime next month, you probably already have the basics covered when it comes to your dorm essentials. You've already picked out the posters and other decorations you are going to display in your tiny corner of your dorm. But there are some of things you may not have considered before heading off to your fall semester away from home. Here is your back-to-school 2018 checklist.

Make sure you have enough storage

A common thing students do when they leave the nest is abandon any idea of living a "zen life." While it is tempting to bring all your clothes and favorite decorations from home, you must remember that you now have a roommate who will need as much space as you do. Make sure that proper closet and under-bed storage units are on your list.

Get your flu shot before the fall semester

This is crucial. You will be thrust into tight quarters with others right before flu season begins. According to a survey by the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases in October 2017 among 1,005 US college students 18 to 24 years old, found that "although most college students in the US (70%) believe it is important to get an annual influenza vaccine, less than half (46%) say they typically get vaccinated."

Some of the people you'll meet at school may well be those interesting students who will broaden your horizons and help you become the person you hope to be. But do you really trust them to be proactive enough to get their flu shots before the fall semester? You need to be focused on your classes and the lay of the land at school, not laid out with some hacking cough you got from some dude down the hall.

Choose a bank close to campus

This might seem like a pretty minor thing to think about, since it's generally easy to find ATMs around most college campuses. But if you are trying to conserve money, you probably don't want to be throwing money away on machines that are out of your bank's network. Some banks charge around $2.50 on top of the normal ATM fees for every time you decide to take out cash for pizza. That adds up. Also, by having a branch nearby, you will also be able to make deposits to your account in case you find a job close to campus or receive birthday checks from your grandma in the mail.

FANTASY FOOTBALL ADVICE

OPINION

BILL DUBIEL

Bill Dubiel is a fantasy football expert at Rotoballer.com and Metro.us

With training camps getting underway, it's time to start getting ready to chase another championship. Don't forget to check out Rotoballer.com for all of the tools you need to get the edge on your league mates.

Collins is the Back to Own in Baltimore

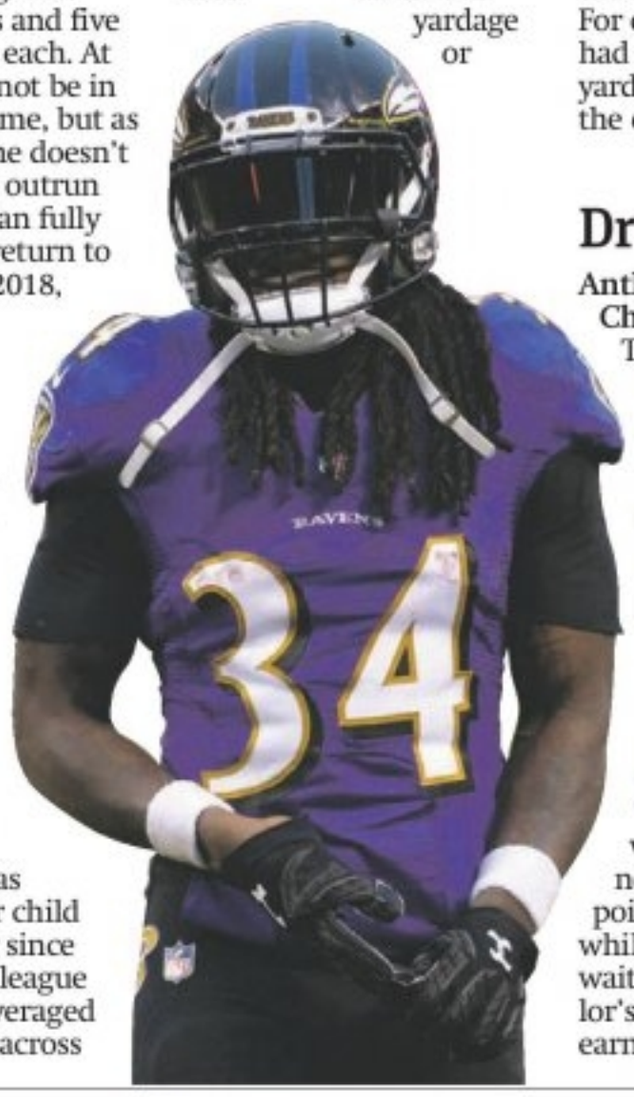
While most eyes are on the quarterback situation in Baltimore, fantasy owners should keep an eye on the running back room as training camp progresses. Alex Collins flashed his play-making ability in 2017, posting 973 yards and six touchdowns via a stellar 4.6 YPC. He finished as a top-25 back despite not really seeing a full workload until the middle of the season, and he's poised to continue that breakout in 2018. All-Pro guard Marshal Yanda is back from injury, which should help open many more lanes than Collins was used to seeing last year. With Joe Flacco projected to hold off rookie Lamar Jackson for the starting QB job and uncertainty in the receiving corps, we can expect the Ravens to continue a run-heavy approach as they try to compete in the AFC North.

Sanders Ready to Return to WR2 Status

Emmanuel Sanders has been a fantasy mainstay for the better part of this decade, but it all came crashing down in 2017 as he struggled to contend with the nightmarish quarterback situation in Denver. The arrival of Case Keenum should alleviate most of those problems, as he represents a legitimate upgrade over the dreadful combination of Trevor Siemian, Brock Osweiler and Paxton Lynch. Prior to last year, Sanders rattled off three straight 1,000-yard seasons, pulling in at least 76 catches and five touchdowns in each. At age 31 he may not be in his physical prime, but as a slot receiver he doesn't exactly need to outrun everyone. We can fully expect him to return to WR2 status in 2018, and he makes for a terrific value pick at his current ADP, which is hovering right around Round 8 or 9.

Landry No Longer a WR2

Jarvis Landry has been the poster child for PPR scoring since he entered the league in 2014. He's averaged 100 receptions across each of the last four seasons, although he's never had either the yardage or touchdowns that one would expect to come with all those catches. For example, in 2016 he had 94 catches for 1,136 yards, but he only found the end zone four times.



Draft Sleepers

Anthony Miller, WR, Chicago Bears
The ultra-talented rookie is poised to take over the slot receiver position for the Bears, and could return flex value as soon as Week 1 with even more upside should Allen Robinson get hurt.

Tyrod Taylor, QB, Cleveland Browns
Taylor has more weapons around him now than at any other point in his career, and while Baker Mayfield is waiting in the wings Taylor's ball security should earn him the gig early.

Cancer Make physical changes that will help you get into shape, or adjust your attitude so you can take advantage of your cultural background, knowledge and experience.

Leo Speak up, share your plans and listen to advice, but when it comes time to make a decision, you must rely on your knowledge and experience to help you make the best choice.

Virgo Don't rule anything or anyone out. Positive change is within reach. Someone or something unusual will spark your interest and motivate you to try something new.

Libra Pour your energy into something you believe in. Make changes at home that will make your life more comfortable, affordable or convenient. It's up to you to make things happen.

Scorpio Don't get railroaded into something you don't want to do. Anger will stand in the way of productivity. Concentrate on what's doable, and reject high-pressure tactics.

Sagittarius Take care of matters personally. If you trust someone else to speak or negotiate on your behalf, you will miss out on benefits you deserve. Emotional deception or manipulation is apparent.

Capricorn A unique approach to the way you earn your living or handle your cash will be lucrative. Don't be afraid to try something new or get into a joint venture.

Aquarius Speed things up a bit and see how much you can accomplish. Partnerships look promising. Discuss plans and find out where you stand. Distance yourself from inconsistent or erratic individuals.

Pisces Dream a little dream and turn your ideas into reality. A joint venture will spark your imagination and encourage you to use your skills differently. A physical improvement will lift your spirits. EUGENIA LAST
